EMSI is committed to offering training, exercise, response, and resources that challenge and cultivate growth of individuals and teams so they are prepared for all-hazard events. Unfortunately, you can't carry an ICS expert to a response, so we've created a handful of resources that will help you do your job better.

Job Aids are an excellent tool that guide you through position duties and responsibilities step-by-step throughout each phase of response.

We currently offer the following job aids:

- Area Command
- Incident Commander
- Liaison Officer
- Logistics Section Chief
- Operations Section Chief
- Planning Section Chief
- Resources Unit Leader
- Safety Officer
- Technical Specialist
- Situation Unit Leader
- Demobilization Unit Leader

Meeting Kits, stocked with all the necessary set-up elements, are a great way to be prepared for your next Incident Command Post and Area Command Post meetings

Beyond Initial Response, coauthored by EMSI President, Chuck Mills, is an excellent ICS reference guide, full of invaluable information, including job aids, checklists, illustrations and more.

Incident Command Post Operations Kits are built to customer specifications. Contents usually include an admin box, vests and vest inserts, wall displays and a meeting room set-up folder.

EMSI has vast experience in exercise design and delivery in support of functional training and response team readiness.

EMSI personnel have also provided coaching and mentoring services for exercises conducted on a national level.

Once exercise criteria and exercise objectives are provided, EMSI can design, develop and deliver a quality exercise to meet your specific objectives.

EMSI takes great pride in providing unparalleled services and quality to our customers. Among these services is the ability to directly support incident or event response activities. This includes providing personnel to fill Incident Management Team (IMT) positions, coach individual members or entire IMT's, as well as the ability to provide evaluations or performance feedback during all phases of the response effort.

Our extensive network of personnel is comprised of some of the most qualified and experienced incident responders in the world. Most are qualified as Type I (or national level) Incident Commanders.

They have an average of more than 25 years experience utilizing the Incident Command System in a wide variety of all-risk/all-hazard incidents and events. They also serve as instructors teaching advanced ICS courses and can help turn your real world situation into a great learning opportunity for your IMT personnel while assisting to bring successful resolutions to your incident or event.

EMSI has comprehensive Incident Command Post kits and other tools necessary to support an IMT. Let us help you manage your next incident or event and allow our world class capability to help assure your success.
